FOREWORD BY THE CHAIRMAN

I was nominated as the President and Chairman of the Indian Institute of Advanced Study in September 2005 and renominated in 2008 after end of the first term of three years. As you all know my second term as the President and Chairman is coming to an end. It has really been a pleasure and privilege to be the patron of this ‘temple of learning’ which was established by a great intellectual giant Dr. Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan. I feel myself honoured to be nominated to this position for which I am thankful to Dr. Manmohan Singhji, Hon’ble Prime Minister of India and late Shri Arjun Singh ji, former Minister of Human Resource and Development. Although I have had a privilege of occupying many public positions such as the Vice Chancellor of University of Mumbai and a Member of Planning commission, the position of President and Chairman of the IAS would always remain special to me for many reasons than one.

In all these years, I have tried, in every possible way, to position the IAS as the premier advanced research institute in the country, where there is blend of research on issues of perennial societal importance as well as those which have direct relevance to the policy-making.

You all might be aware that the Institute was in some sort of a drift when I assumed the charge of its President and the Chairman. For nearly one and a half year, the Institute did not have Director, and it was without full-time Secretary for almost four years. In the absence of Director, I had to undertake his functions, besides discharging my duties as a Member of the Planning Commission. Through the dedicated team of officials and the entire staff of the Institute, we ensured that the normal functioning of the Institute went on smoothly. The Fellowship programme, Visiting Professor and Visiting Scholar programmes, and the Inter-University Centre of the University Grants Commission Programme functioned well. It was after quite an effort that we could select a full time Director, Professor Peter Ronald deSouza in December 2008. The Institute has firmly re-established itself under the able academic leadership of Professor deSouza for which I compliment him. We have not only strengthened the existing academic programmes, but have also taken new initiatives, establishment of Tagore Centre for the Study of Culture and Civilization being the most important one. The publication programme of the institute is also going well. During the last six-year period, we could publish more than 30 books on various important topics. The library and the infrastructural facilities are being constantly enhanced and improved so as to cater to the needs of the Fellows and the scholars visiting the institute.

As I had promised last year, we have been able to complete the process of finalizing our accounts and present the Audited Statement to this august house, thereby adhering to the schedule that is specified by the government. We will, therefore, be able to send the printed copies of the Annual Report for the year 2010-11 to the Ministry of Human Resource Development by the stipulated date. I hope that the administration would try to adhere to this schedule in future as well.

I would like to put on record my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Manmohan Singh ji and late Shri Arjun Singh ji for reposing complete confidence in me during my six-year tenure as the President and the Chairman of the Institute. I also thank Shri Kapil Sibal ji for encouraging me while carrying out my duties. I thank all the officials of the HRD Ministry for their continued cooperation to me during my tenure.

I must express my gratitude to all members of the IAS Society, Governing Body , Finance Committee and those of various Committees whose contributions are of immense importance for running the Institute. I am grateful to all Fellows at the Institute who constitute the essence of the Institute. I appreciate the initiatives taken by Professor Peter deSouza during the last four years and hope that he will add many more. I very much appreciate the constant cooperation extended by the officials and entire administrative staff without which it would have not been possible to run the Institute. I am sure, with all these enlarged and innovative projects, the IAS will emerge as one of the fountain heads of advanced learning

26th November 2011

And the Chairman of the Governing Body

Thakur, Secretary IAS, proposed the vote of thanks.

B. Seminars, Conferences, Symposia and Round Tables

The following activities were held during the period under Report:

1. International Conference on "History and Memory" (18-20 May 2010)

Rationale: Is reconciliation achieved through historical amnesia? Or, is remembrance, the acknowledgement of past error, and forgiveness the answer to conflict? If reconciliation is the object, is 'the truth' at all germane to the goal? The focus of the deliberations on "History and Memory" was conceived as the exploration of collective memories worldover. Who 'remembers' what – what is selected, highlighted, even amplified or modified from the reservoir of memory? Is the project of raising memory fitted to the conceptions, ideology, and relations of power in the present and promoted in one's own context? Who carries what and to where in a network of global encounters is not only factual based, upon a closed concept of historical truth, but also imaginatively represents the desires of the present.

In the context of historical encounters between peoples, cultures, and nation-states, the dynamics of cross-cultural contact need examination. Critical to our purpose is the question: Are the protagonists of the encounters open to cross-cultural dialogue and multiple ways of seeing the past? It is historically significant and contemporaneously crucial that we study the ways in which they are represented today drawing upon often contradictory and contentious ‘memories’. As Kerwin Lee Klein puts it, “The memory industry ranges from the museum trade to the legal battles over repressed memory and on to the market for academic books that invoke memory as a key word”.

An International Conference on “History and Memory” was organised in collaboration with Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR), New Delhi and Indian Council of Historical Research (ICHR), New Delhi during 18-20 May 2010 at IAS Shimla. 2. Study Week on “Exploring Gender, Redefining the Field: Feminist Journeys in the Social Sciences, Humanities and the Arts” (1-5 June 2010)

Rationale: For almost three decades now scholars and creative artists have been redefining the fields that they have been working in to bring in a different perspective from the ways in which knowledge and the arts were organised, and reproduced until then. Gender as an analytical category has had a major impact on the social sciences and humanities and has transformed the way we think about disciplines and disciplinary boundaries. These developments are now fairly well understood. Less attention has been given to the manner in which feminists have redefined the performative arts, cinema and photography as fields to work in, or of the scholarship in these areas.

The study week on gender was intended to bring together a range of scholars and practitioners of the arts, including a number of younger women, for an in-depth engagement and sharing of their work and ideas on the projects that they have done, or are currently doing. The overarching theme of the study week was to provide for a collective journey for the participants as they are taken through the current and previous engagements of other participants. The presentations and discussions were based on history, science, literature, films, theatre, photography and folklore.

A study week on “Exploring Gender, Redefining the Field: Feminist Journeys in the Social Sciences, Humanities and the Arts” was organized at IAS held during 1-5 June 2010. 3. Study Week on “Indian Logic and Epistemology” (2-11 July 2010)

Rationale: The structural depth in Indian philosophical systems was acquired in ancient India through dialogue among various philosophical systems. For a meaningful dialogue, however, what is most important is the language of communication. Therefore, by 1000 A.D. it was felt necessary to develop a language of precise communication. It started taking shape and by the 13th A.D. a language called Navya Nyaya language was fully developed and thereafter almost all intellectual and philosophical discourses and debates adopted that very language of Navya Nyaya for precise communication and it continues to be used in traditional philosophical discourses even today.

But unfortunately, there are very few institutions in India engaged in the study of Indian intellectual and philosophical traditions, offering any course in the language of Navya Nyaya in which the entire discourse of 1000 years is preserved. As a result, these texts are not accessible to a genuine scholar having genuine interest.

A graded Study Week programme on “Indian Logic and Epistemology” was organised to meet this need during 2-11 July 2010. Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director IAS delivered the Welcome address. Professor V.N. Jha, Convener of the Study Week presented the Keynote address of the Study Week. Professor Ujjwala Jha, University of Pune also spoke on the occasion.

4. Study Week on “Dalit Challenges and Disciplinary Practices” (19-25 July 2010)

Rationale: The interface between dalit activism and academia in the last two decades has given way to a growing body of work on Dalit Studies. It is essentially inter/multi-disciplinary in character and explores new questions, methods and paradigms. The political and cultural overtones of the term and concept of ‘dalit’ have opened up new possibilities of critical engagement with conceptual categories of exclusion and marginality for disciplinary practices. Posing a challenge to the existing disciplines, it propels the initiative for the creation of an alternative paradigm as well as reconfiguring the contours of everyday life in Indian society in general and academia in particular. Caste, religion and land as determinants of relations of power and subordination, as sources of oppression and humiliation are central to the understanding of dalit life-worlds.

A Study Week on “Dalit Challenges and Disciplinary Practices” of intensive presentations, discussions, and reflections was called for this purpose. The invited participants cover a broad range of scholars from different disciplines including public intellectuals who have already contributed in the field of Dalit Studies. Each day of the Week during 19-25 July 2010 took up not more than four papers with ample time for presentation and discussion to finally lead the scholars toward publication of its proceedings by the Institute. Professor Ghanshyam Shah, National Fellow of the Institute gave the Welcome Address. Professor Raj Kumar Hans, Fellow, IAS and Convener of the Study Week introduced the theme of the Study Week.

5. Seminar on “Utpaladeva, Philosopher of Recognition” (20-21 August 2010)

Rationale: Utpaladeva or Utpalacarya (end of 9th-early 10th century, Kashmir) is one of the greatest philosophers that India has produced, but he is hardly known in India itself. After Somananda (9th century) who laid the foundation for the philosophy of Recognition (Pratyabhijna Darsana), Utpaladeva established this school on a solid basis by his philosophical works Isvarapratyabhijna Karika and Vrtti, with a Vivrti that has come down to us only in fragments, and the Siddhitrayi, containing three terse philosophical treatises. Besides his philosophical works he was also a mystical poet, as expressed in his unsurpassable hymn collection Sivastotravali. Utpaladeva’s philosophical influence was established by his great successor (two generations later) Abhinavagupta (10th-11th century) and his two extensive commentaries on the Karikas and Vivrti: Isvarapratyabhijna Vimarsini and Vivrtivimarsini.

The genius of this philosopher of Recognition was re-discovered and was given his due place not only in the history of Indian thought but also in the present-day intellectual and spiritual situation at the Seminar during 20-21 August 2010 at IAS Shimla.

Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director IAS, welcomed the participants. 6. Roundtable on "Social Inquiry Today: The Challenge of Description and Change" (24 September 2010)

Rationale: Some years ago, the Danish social scientist, Bent Flyvbjerg published a trenchant and rather monumental book on the possibilities of social inquiry, imploring the grounds for a reappraisal of the role of the social sciences. It was a sobering study of the trend dominating the social and behavioural sciences where, in one form or another, crucial aspects of social inquiry have been attenuated by the attempt to emulate the natural sciences and create a kind of general theory; after all, as Flyvbjerg suggested, the strength of the social sciences really lay in their rich, reflexive analysis of values and power – so essential to the social and economic development of society. The idea at the "Social Inquiry Today: The Challenge of Description and Change" was conceptualized independently of the problematic that Flyvbjerg was alluding to; independently, one need add, of the decisions to be made concerning the imperative to foreground the idea of a reflexive social science. And yet, it cannot be denied that what was being sought for in the context of the roundtable, even as it cuts across Flyvbjerg's restaging of the prospects of social inquiry today, also resonates with the latter's theme.

The effort clearly was to nurture a fresh reflection on the social sciences and the prospects for social inquiry today. Organised at Department of Sociology, University of Hyderabad, Hyderabad, on 24th September 2010, the main issue was to develop around the projectual dimension, with the objective of visualizing both the social sciences and social inquiry today from a particular viewpoint, which singles out the dimension of description and change as social science's space of communication and negotiation. It faced emerging problems that characterize the dynamics of social inquiry today, like the challenge of subalternity and difference, the question of democracy, the enlargement of the space of rights, social equity and public accountability, the sense of contending public space and the emerging dynamics of scholarly production in the social sciences in India (as indeed in other parts of the world).

Professor Vinod Jairath, Head, Department of Sociology, University of Hyderabad welcomed the participants. Professor Sasheej Hegde, Convener of the roundtable introduced the Round table theme. Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director, IAS presented the Director's remarks.

Participants: Professor Shiv Visvanathan, Dhirubhai Ambani Institute of Information and Communication Technology, Gandhi Nagar; Dr. Vivek Dhareshwar, Independent Scholar, Bangalore; Professor Madhava Prasad, Central Institute of English and Foreign Languages, Hyderabad; Professor Pulapre Balakrishnan, Centre for Development Studies, Trivandrum; Mr. Harsh Sethi, Consulting Editor, Seminar, Delhi; Professor D. 7. Study Week on “Reading Rammanohar Lohia” (3-7 October 2010)

Rationale: What we remember and what we have forgotten about Rammanohar Lohia in his birth centenary year is as much a comment on the state of political and intellectual life in contemporary India as it is on the man who lived a short and intense life of mind and action. In part it is a reflection of his strong personality and iconoclastic mind that bifurcates his memory into two strands that talk past one another: the small and dwindling band of Lohia's blind admirers who are still too dazzled to see anything beyond ‘doctor sahib’ and the equally blind critics who are too prejudiced and self assured to even read what Lohia had to say about some of the big questions of our time.

The birth centenary of Rammanohar Lohia is a good opportunity to remedy the amnesia. While the birth centenary celebrations have resulted in many activities and seminars devoted to Lohia's ideas, there is a need for systematic reading of Lohia. The Study Week on ‘Reading Rammanohar Lohia’ did precisely that, namely read Lohia's texts closely and subjecting it to meticulous scrutiny. The Study Week during 3-7 October 2010 was divided into sessions devoted to pre-specified texts of Lohia. Each session was led by a scholar who has worked on that aspect of Lohia, but this did not take the form of paper presentation. The sessions were devoted to careful textual scrutiny and criticism by all the participants. Since the basic idea was to encourage a reading of Lohia by a new generation of scholars, a majority of participants were younger scholars who may or may not have written much on Lohia but who were willing to engage with him.

Professor Peter Ronald desouza, Director, IAS welcomed the participants. Professor Yogendra Yadav, Centre for Study of Developing Societies, Delhi and Dr. Prem Singh, Department of Hindi, University of Delhi, Conveners of the Study Week introduced the theme. Professor Nand Kishore Acharya, International Institute of Information Technology, Hyderabad gave the Keynote address.

9. Seminar on “Rashtravad Aur Upanyas” (8-10 November 2010)

Rationale: A seminar on “Rashtravad aur Upanyas: Sandarbha Hindi Upanyas” was organized on 8-10 November 2010. This was the first attempt to study and analyze the Hindi novels of the last 125 years in their engagement with the theme of nationalism. In this interdisciplinary seminar, there were scholars who were literary critics, social scientists, dalit critics and feminist writers. Twenty scholars made presentations.

The seminar began with opening remarks by Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director of the Institute who highlighted various view points on the issue of nationalism and how it found a place in literature. Professor Nityananda Tiwari, in his Keynote address, covered the journey of Indian nationalism from its formative period to its development after independence as expressed in the Hindi novel. He argued that just as Indian nationalism was a product of the encounter of Indian pride in its heritage to British colonialism, the Hindi novel is also a product of the interaction between the indigenous narrative form with Western literary realism. Dr. Pramod Kumar, Fellow and Convener of the Seminar introduced the theme.

Participants: Dr. Vidya Sinha, Kirori Mal College, Delhi University; Professor Nityanand Tiwari, former Head, Department of Hindi, Delhi University; Dr. Prem Singh, Delhi University; Professor Rohini Aggrawal, Maharshi Dayanand University, Rohatak; Professor Gopeshwar Singh, Delhi University; Shri Manjul Kumar Singh, A.R.S.D. 10. International Conference on “Shifting Perimeters: Social and Ethical Implications of Human Genome Research” (15-16 November 2010)

Rationale: Representing emergent global assemblages of science-techno-capital power, research on the human genome has made quick alliances with market networks, flexible capital, and global research. Despite the growth of human genomic research and its presence in a wide array of possible uses, the ethical, legal, and social implications of human genomics have largely been reduced to a footnote. Research on human genome and its allied science and technical engagements stand to be read at multiple levels: as new informations which has implications for a range of disciplines: as sources for new medical knowledge that can be deployed against a range of diseases; as the prototype for new organisational structures for conducting science and technology research; as holding the mastercode to the possibilities of remaking the physiological constitution of humans; as commercialized knowledge in which humans can exercise their choice and options to redefine the physical and social body; and as a body of knowledge that has the potential to alter the perimeters between science and society and the very constitution of a range of disciplines. In seeking articulations over these issues and concerns, an international seminar on “Shifting Perimeters: Social and Ethical Implications of Human Genome Research” was organised which was a preliminary conversation to bring together understandings and interpretations related several questions:

1. What are the potentialities of the body of knowledge of human genomics? What significance does it have for disciplines of medicine, neurobiology, psychiatry, sociology, anthropology, political science, public admini
2. What regimes (legal, ethical, political) are required to manage the linkage of human genomics research and its use in a wide variety of fields? What significance does human genome research have for the increasing market based, commercial and profit-oriented research enterprises?
3. What are the potential advantages and disadvantages that countries, such as India, face in the conduct, dissemination and use of human genomic research.
4. What national and international regimes (legal and ethical) are required to ensure that knowledge and information from human genomic research is used as a public good and therefore, what new transnational regulations are required to ensure this?

5. What are the implications of the use of human genomic research in the fields of a range of new medical knowledge (psychiatry, psychology, physiology etc. and practices (such as personalised medicines; profiling, predictive genetic testing etc)? What ethical and legal concerns need to be borne in mind even as these gain wide usage?
6. What are the larger universal concerns relating to the possibilities of using human genomic research to alter the physiologies of humans and hence what larger ethical and philosophical issues can be raised about the very constitution and undertakings of the humans.

The seminar was organised in collaboration with National Institute of Advanced Studies (NIAS), Bangalore on 15-16 November 2010 at NIIAS. Professor A.R. Vasavi, NIAS was the Convener of the Conference. Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director, IAS and Professor B.V. Sreekantan, Faculty, NIAS presented Inaugural Comments.

11. Colloquium on “Resurgent North East: Constraints and Opportunities” (18-20 November 2010)

The concept of North East or North East Frontier has a colonial beginning, and it has been developed into the North East region in modern India. This is now a distinct political, ethnic, cultural and geographic entity. The North East India is growing, making progress in every field, making the quality of life improved, more educated and more prosperous. It is a resurgent India which has emerged. The Indian constitution is one of the best instruments of freedom and administration. Indian democracy under the constitution is working; the ideals of Indian democracy, freedom, equality and justice under the umbrella of secularism.

People participate in the democratic process. The democratic institutions like, the Assembly, Panchayats, traditional village councils and the autonomous district councils are working. How genuine and effective are this democratic process? Galore are the corrupt electoral process, use of money, muscle power and gun culture. What freedom and democracy mean to the common people? The system is democratic and there is people’s support to the system. True, there are constraints to democracy; it has to be overcome through people’s consciousness and appropriate reforms.

There are diverse ethnic aspirations ranging from the demands for secession and sovereignty, statehood, ethnic homeland and district councils. These ethnic movements or insurgency are marked by violence. Naturally, these violent movements are encountered by the security force as the counter insurgency measures. They have to defend the Indian state and keep a law and order to maintain the unity and integrity of the nation even to the extent of using a draconian law named, the Armed Forces Special Power Act (AFSPA). There is a great need for the prevention of the violation of human rights both by the security forces and the insurgents.

Dialogue is going on for a negotiated settlement of the conflicts. There is a genuine demand for peace from the people. India as a great nation can accommodate the ethnic aspirations. Ethnic nationalism is to be absorbed within Indian nationalism and democracy.

The women of the North East India are well known for their social freedom and their role in the livelihood of the people. In Meghalaya, there is the unique matriachal system. What are the gender issues? How the position of women is affected by modernization. The culture of the region is rich, diverse and vibrant. The classical dance forms, the folk forms of art, dance and music are preserved by the indigenous communities in the midst of modernisation.

Education, technology, development, democratic process, culture and development, trade and commerce, modern communication including IT revolution have led the region towards modernity. How modern are the people of the North East region?

The region faces constraints in many spheres of life, problems are complex and some times defy immediate solution. But no problem is insolvable. There are opportunities which should be utilised to solve the problem.

These were some of the issues which were discussed at a colloquium on “Resurgent North East: Constraints and Opportunities”, organized from 18-20 November 2010.

Participants: Professor Kshitri Mayum Bimola Devi, Manipur University; Professor Tiplut Nongbri, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi; Dr. C. As they spoke about their personal experiences as writers they reflected the varied and divergent intellectual frameworks and experiences that have emerged out of the interactions and confrontations of the colonial and the postcolonial with the indigenous and personal.

13. Workshop on “The Travelling Public: Perceptions and Representations of Indian Railways” (7-8 December 2011)

Rationale: As the slow leisurely form of travel embedded in nature disappeared, and the mechanical time and space regulated travel of the railways took over in the middle of the nineteenth century in India, a new world of mobility, speed, displacement and encounters with new people, new places, and new ways of being began to take shape. This rapid movement across physical space destabilized the very notion of ‘space and time’ and opened it up for new uses. This opening up of space lent itself to a change in the set of relations of people to people, of people to machines, of people to places, of people to time, past, present and future.

What is the shape of this new world coming into being? What role do the railways play in it? Railways as carriers of ideas of progress, what new forms of modern subjectivity did they generate? The promise of a modern era, symbolized by the railways, where the individual would realize her potential unencumbered by social distinctions of caste, gender and religion, what happened to it? What is the response of literature and popular culture to this most transformatory of technologies? These were some of the questions the seminar debated and addressed in the course of a two day seminar on 7 -8 December 2010.

Speakers: Dr. Di Drummond, Associate Principal Lecturer in History And Leeds for Victorian Studies, Trinity University College, Leeds, UK; Professor Colin Divall, Head, Institute of Railway Studies and Transport History, New York; UK, Dr. Abhay Kumar Dubey, Editor, Indian Languages Programme, Centre for Study of Developing Societies, Delhi; Mr. Bill Aitken, Travel Writer, Mussoorie; Professor Mukul Kesavan, Department of History, Jamia Millia Islamia, New Delhi.

14. International Conference on “Challenges to Democracy in South Asia” (15-16 January 2011)

Rationale: There are several reasons to choose the theme, some of them stem from a genuine desire to understand the working of democracies in the region, in terms of their histories, historical residues that still interfere in their contemporary politics, the paradoxes that emerge as contested claims have to be negotiated and conflicting goals harmonised if possible, and the consequences that are produced in the dialectical relationship between politics and economies as these democracies respond to the forces that have been unleashed by globalisation. This first set of motivations can be located along the axis of ‘what is democracy doing to South Asia’.

The second set of concerns is located on the other axis of ‘what is South Asia doing to democracy’. Stating it this way allows us to revisit the conceptual discourse on democracy, led primarily by the epistemic north, and thereby present it with the ‘inconvenient facts’ of our working democracies, ‘inconvenient facts’ that do not lend themselves to easy evaluation and, therefore, ones which this conceptual discourse cannot quite accommodate. This perhaps calls for a reworking of some of the concepts of the democracy discourse.

An International Conference on “Challenges to Democracy in South Asia” was organized at India International Centre, Delhi during 15-16 January 2011.

- 15. Seminar on "Challenges to Inclusive Development in North-West India: Sites, Strategies and Possibilities" (28-29 January 2011)

Rationale: North-West India, which till few decades ago, promised to lead the rest of India in the areas of rural infrastructure, agriculture and social capital formation has suffered serious reversals.

As the juggernaut of development rolls by a series of contradictions confront us. While the big landlords continue to multiply their gains made during the heydays of the Green Revolution partly due to heavy state-subsidies, and partly due to their own entrepreneurial skills, the small farmers are burdened with heavy debt. The sudden levels of prosperity seen earlier are difficult to sustain as the land exposed to mindless doses of pesticides and weedicides does not yield enough. The small farmer fails to reconcile with the tragic aftermaths of Green Revolution – either he is driven to commit suicide, or he seeks to indulge in drug-induced bouts of self-forgetfulness, or still worse, he relapses into the feudal past in moments of vainglory. The journey backwards in the age of modernity generates worst kind of social aberrations such as female foeticide, honour killings, the occasional rise of militancy, caste-clashes, kabootarbazi, etc. The project of modernity seems to have consolidated the forces of obscurantism, partly because it was imported from above, and partly because it did not include everyone within its promising sweep. While it might be difficult to go back to ground zero and restart the process of development all over again, it is time that we think about negotiating with it in ways that bring about possibilities of ‘inclusive development’. Assigning the responsibility of inclusive development singularly to the ruling elite, entrenched as it is in the stale structures of the State, would be unimaginative. Global flows have disrupted easy, predictable and linear ways of coming to terms with paradigms, processes and possibilities of progress.

It is to understand these paradoxes that a seminar on “Challenges to Inclusive Development in North-West India: Sites, Strategies and Possibilities” was organised in Chandigarh in collaboration with Centre for the Study of Social Exclusion and Inclusive Policy, Panjab University during 28-29 January 2011. The seminar was divided into three segments: sites, strategies and possibilities.

16. Seminar on “Social and Academic Audit of the Institutions of Higher Education in North East” (11-12 March 2011)

Rationale: Higher education at present has attracted a lot of attention the world over amongst different sections of society ranging from the academia to the policy makers. Its extraordinary role in augmenting economic and technological development in the present social order is widely recognized. However, a lot of ambivalence and confusion prevails in this sector. These relate to ideological issues of inclusion and exclusion, national interest vs. global commitments, market orientation vs. production of intellectuals capable of critiquing, confronting and contributing to the development trajectories for the benefit of people and society at large. The original ethos in the First University Education Commission of 1948 to train ‘intellectual pioneers of civilization’ ‘in the universities, which are the sanctuaries of the inner life of the nation’, has also been echoed in the Yaspal Committee Report on Higher Education. The first sentence of the report begins ‘A university is a place where new ideas germinate, strike roots and grow tall and sturdy’. Simultaneously the report also urged university education to be linked to the job markets which are in tune with the emerging needs of the society.

So far as India’s Northeast is concerned, it is now well accepted that the region is a late developer in the field of higher education. For instance, the first university in the entire northeastern region came up only in 1948 in Guwahati, Assam. Moreover, with the exception of the North Eastern Hill University which was set up in 1973, most of the universities in the region were set up only in the mid 80s and late 90s. Although the region received a new boost recently by the conversion of several state universities into central universities as well as the setting up of new central universities, yet overall there has not been any significant change in the academic deficit that the region started with. That the region suffers badly from the dearth of professional institutions, including Engineering and Medical colleges, perhaps needs no reiteration. Most of the colleges in the region offer courses in the arts stream, putting the students in a further disadvantaged position in the job market. Although lately one can see the mushrooming of private initiatives in offering vocational courses with promises of placement etc., their authenticity and integrity are of doubtful variety in most of the cases, doing more harm than good. Even in those institutes of higher education which have come up in the recent past, and those which are already there, the demands outpace the limited seats, resulting in a large exodus of students to the metropolitan centers of the country which offer better infrastructural facilities and market oriented courses.

To discuss and deliberate on these issues a seminar on “Higher Education in India’s North East: Issues and Concerns” in collaboration with Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development, Guwahati was held on 11-12 March 2011 at Guwahati. The seminar revolved broadly around the following themes, with special focus on India ‘s Northeast.

- Political economy of higher education
- Funding and social auditing
- Quality and quantity issues; human resource and infrastructure
- Availability and access
- Courses and curriculum—quality and relevance

17. International Conference on “The Character of Mind” (18-20 March 2010)

Rationale: The human mind has been the subject of philosophical and scientific speculation for many millennia. Early modern ‘natural philosophers’ targeted the mind’s ‘cognoscitive powers’. Before that, ancient Greek philosophers were fascinated by specifically human domains of knowledge such as arithmetic, music, and geometry. Still before that, Panini, himself based on yet earlier traditions, inaugurated the formal study of universal structures of human grammar. Only 50 years ago, the study of the mind was christened a ‘science’: ‘cognitive science’. What has it revealed, and does a specific concept of mind, new or old, emerge from it? Has knowledge of the character of mind truly increased, ever since its systematic study began? Have we truly accessed the domain of the mental, or are we forever targeting only its outer manifestations, that is, complex human behaviour in socio-cultural contexts? Do we know which kind of data would be relevant to an actual theory of mind? Are these questions ill-formed or premature?

Partly independently of the developments in cognitive science, some of these questions were in fact addressed as analytic philosophers inaugurated the discipline of the ‘philosophy of mind’ more than a century ago. Major philosophical paradigms in thinking about the mind—functionalism, eliminativism, materialism, and dualism—have long been formulated. By now, discussions and arguments have become ever more intricate and arcane, yet an overarching consensus on the character of mind, as well as a strategic direction, appears to be missing.

It was to deliberate on these issues that an International Conference on “The Character of Mind” was organised in collaboration with Indian Council of Philosophical Research, New Delhi from 18-20 March 2010 at IAS.

Participants: Professor G. Mishra, Member Secretary, ICPR, New Delhi; Dr. Probal Das Gupta, Linguistic Research Unit, Indian Statistical Institute, Kolkata; Dr. Amita Chatterjee, Presidency University, Kolkata; Professor Barry Smith, Institute of Philosophy, School of Advanced Study, University of London, London; Professor Mohan Matthen, University of Toronto; Professor Ned Block, Department of Philosophy, New York University, New York; Professor Susan Carey, Department of Psychology, Harvard University, Cambridge; Professor Giuseppe Longobardi, University of Trieste; Professor John Mikhail, Professor of Law, Georgetown University Law Center, Washington; Professor Anna Maria Di Sciullo University of Montreal, Canada; Professor Timothy J Crow, Orford University; Professor Partha Ghose, Institute of Physics, Kolkata; Dr. Smita Sarkar, Department of Philosophy, Jadavpur University, Kolkata; Dr. Mudhuchanda Sen, Department of Philosophy, Rabindra Bharati University, Kolkata; Dr. Maushumi Guha, Department of Philosophy and School of Cognitive Science, Jadavpur University, Kolkata; Dr. Ravi M. 18. Workshop on “Understanding Collective Action, Violence and Post–Colonial Democracy” (19-20 March 2011)

Rationale: Democracy has never perhaps stood as discredited as it is now. War on terror, xenophobia, security paranoia, stifling of peoples’ movements, patriarchal mores, flattening the resistance of ethnic, religious and regional minorities have become the sine qua non of democracies around the world. Add to that democracy’s historic alliance with capitalism and a free market which perpetrates grave systemic violence. But democracy also opens up the possibility of contentions, collective actions and claim-makings, entitlement, assertion of rights so on and so forth. All these aspects are precise and alive within the ambit of India’s ongoing democratic experience.

A two-day workshop on ‘Understanding Collective Action, Violence, and Post-Colonial Democracy’, organized jointly by Mahanirban Calcutta Research Group (CRG) and the Indian Institute of Advanced Study (IIAS), 19-20 March 2011, wanted to frame the mutually embedded nature of the experience of democracy and violence in contemporary India and accordingly prepare a possible research agenda for the future. Another important aim of the workshop was to explore and review the traces of emancipatory politics implicit in the circulation of such political idioms as gender, identity, subalternity and marginality etc.

The workshop threw up relevant ideas for future research.

- An eclectic approach is the key, but the clear ethical orientation was towards resistance, politics and enfranchisement of the marginalized and the subaltern.
- A balanced understanding of historical processes was proposed. Modernity or democracy or state was to be enframed in all their heterogeneity, not to be seen as villains in a token gesture towards emancipatory politics.
- Violence is to be seen in both its structural and physical manifestation, and also in its variegated moral dimensions, but situated in a holistic optic. Violence of the rebels and the legislators are different, but perhaps speak of many continuities and similarities of political culture.
- In conceptualizing emancipation, resistance and rebellion, one need not homogenize the resisting bloc. There are fissures within that too, signified by gender, ethnic and religious questions.
- A study should focus simultaneously on fever-pitch, insurrectionary moments as well as the everyday, seemingly banal happenings and agentic acts to make sense of violence and democracy.
- Theoretical tools should remain complimentary to empirical findings and the notion of historical change.

19. Study Week on “Theory of Arts and Aesthetics according to Abhinavagupta”, (23-30 March 2011)

The Study Week on Abhinavagupta was organized to explore the profound theoretical and religious genius of Abhinavagupta (10-11th century AD) in connection with his innovative theory of aesthetics exposed in his commentaries on the Dhvanyaloka of Anandavardhana and in the Abhinavabharati (the commentary on the Bharatanatyācāstra) that gave him a pan-Indian recognition. The seminar intended to provide the experience of the textual reading of the Abhinavabharati and the Tantraloka was supplemented by the lectures delivered by specialists discussing the historical and philosophical background of his concepts along with the practical application of Abhinava's theoretical concepts as illustrated by inspiring performances of Kutiyattam (Dr. Madhu Margi) and Bharatanatyam (Ms. Aranyani Bhargava).

The Study Week was organized by the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla. This powerful and magical location was a constant reminder of Abhinavagupta's own words when he says: 'Knowledge is not divided <bhinna> by the diversity of the objects of knowledge. (It is universal and pervasive) as is (the vision of) a man standing on the peak of a mountain'. About 25 participants came from all over the country, as well as from abroad. They represented a broad range of academic institutions in the public as well as the private sector and brought to the Study week a valuable mix of experiences and perspectives. The speakers, resource persons and performing artists representing a vast range of disciplines directly and indirectly related to Abhinavagupta's studies presented the audience with multi-layered concepts, experiences, insights and views.

The seminar was structured in a way that helped participants to walk through the issues, starting from the relevance of the historical and philosophical context of the aesthetics before Abhinavagupta, through the critical analysis of the key-texts of Abhinavagupta (Abhinavabharati, Tantraloka) and finally to the actual implementation of his theories in literature, poetry, dance and music. The objectives of the seminar were intended to provide insight into aesthetic issues, to identify the contextual basis and influences, and to discuss the possible approaches for formulating and implementing aesthetics in the contemporary framework of postmodern fluidity. Lectures from various disciplines spoke on Vedas, Agamas, theory of art, poetics and theatre and brought together different approaches and concepts into a unifying perspective and on the scope of aesthetics at different levels.

J. INTER UNIVERSITY CENTRE

The IAS acts as the Inter University Centre (IUC) for Social Sciences and Humanities on behalf of the University Grants Commission. The academic programmes of the IUC have three basic components: (i) the scheme of Associateship; (ii) organization of Research Seminars in different parts of the country; and (iii) holding of Study Weeks on problems of national and international interest at the Institute. The Centre invites serving teachers from the universities and colleges in the country to spend three months for three consecutive years at the Centre to: (a) complete a piece of writing that they might at the time be engaged in; (b) revise their doctoral work for publication; (c) make use of the library facilities of the Institute; and (d) interact with Fellows of the Institute and Visiting Professors and Visiting Scholars from India and abroad who come to the Institute. The Associates also take part in the seminars and conferences, both national and international, which are among the regular activities of the Institute. Apart from their own work, the Associates are also expected to participate in all the academic activities of the Institute. They are required to give at least one presentation during their stay at the Centre. It is, however, optional for Associates to submit their research paper to the Institute for publication in the Institute's journals.

(2) Seminars Organised Under IUC

1. Spring School on the “Mahabharata Today” (14-28 April 2010)

Rationale: The Mahabharata is one ancient book of India in which modern Indians have substantial investments. It is as if, to the moderns, (particularly to those who have been subjected to the rigors of western pedagogy), Mahabharata is at once an archive and a living text—a source-book complete-by-itself and a text perennially-under-construction as well.

A storehouse of information, Mahabharata furnishes ample material to any professional interested in ‘excavation’—and the professional may don the hat of, say, the anthropologist or the historian or the sociologist or the linguist or the literary critic to work out, even if provisionally, some or the other well-integrated meaning. On the other hand, in the course of entering the Mahabharata there is almost none who does not undergo a sense of déjà vu—an inescapable feeling that the ‘present’ s/he inhabits is only a re-play of ‘happenings’ already-recorded; an eerie sensation that most of the ethical dilemmas, the logical paradoxes, the unavoidable impasses which baffle the modern man as well as the mood of irresolution following every resolution that keeps plaguing him have already been punctiliously check listed.

A spring school on “Mahabharata Today” was organized at IAS during 14-28 April 2010. Professor Sanjay Palshikar, Fellow, IAS welcomed the participants and the resource persons. 2. Seminar on “Modernity and Changing Social Fabric of Punjab and Haryana” (27-29 September 2010)

Rationale: The seminar on “Modernity and Changing Social Fabric of Punjab and Haryana” held during 27-29 September 2010 proposed to interrogate the complexities of the contemporary social formation in Punjab and Haryana. It underlined that despite the recent emergence of post-modern studies which present a critique of the ‘abstract notion of the term modern’, modernity carries immense significance for an understanding of contemporary social processes. Apart from theoretical debates, modernity as a value system, also amply reflected in the Indian Constitution, as an alternative or contrast to orthodox traditions offers multiple historical possibilities. Many of these debates emerged earlier when the normative traditions of the different regions of India had an interface with colonialism.

The conceptual foundations of Modernity particularly in the Indian context have often been theorised by social and political scientists but these have primarily been capturing macro-aspects of our social formations. Thus a need was felt to locate the regional diversity on the one hand, and its philosophical and material basis on the other. Also, the claims of ‘state oriented modernity’ have induced uneven processes of development in the regional contexts. These processes, culminating with globalisation and its inbuilt contradictions, required further interrogation to comprehend and analyse the changing social fabric of Punjab and Haryana.

Dr. Yogesh Snehi, Department of History, DAV College, Amritsar and Dr. Lallan S. Baghel, Department of Philosophy, Panjab University, Chandigarh were the Conveners of the Seminar. Professor Peter Ronald deSouza, Director, IAS welcomed the scholars from across the region. Dr. Yogesh Snehi, introduced the theme of the Seminar. Professor J.S. ADMINISTRATIVE AND OTHER INITIATIVES

During the year under report we have initiated a couple of new initiatives which will fructify during the on-going year.

HERITAGE WALK:

The Viceregal Lodge rechristened as Rashtrapati Nivas post-47 is a grand building. Annually the Nivas is visited by more than one lakh tourists Indian and foreign. The rear portion of the building has been spruced up and we have taken a policy decision to ensure that all portions of the building are used frequently – this would ensure proper upkeep of all parts of the building. We propose to start a Heritage Walk which would take the tourists down the memory lane – the walk would be of two hours duration. The walk would ensure that all parts of the building are visited and also cover major part of the campus. The walk would also generate additional resources which in turn would be used for maintenance of the Institute.

FCRA:

The Institute had applied for registration under the Foreign Contribution Regulation Act to the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA), Govt. of India. The MHA vide letter No. II/21022/78(0007)/2010-FCRA II, dated 16.12.2010, has given the permission under the aforesaid Act. This permission opens a new source of revenue/funding for IAS which can be used for expansion, improving infrastructure, maintenance of the campus and above all have an untied source of funds which can be used creatively with the approval of Finance Committee/Governing Body/Society. Needless to say the FCRA will give us an opportunity to tap the philanthropic ventures of Corporate Sector and wealthy individuals.

ECOLOGICAL REJUVENATION:

The Institute has total land to the extent of 80 odd acres and major portion is forested. The Institute has already taken up a major plantation drive i.e. avenue plantation (on the roadside) gap filling i.e. plantation on barren patches. This will not only enhance the green cover on the campus but also make the institute eco-friendly. In the coming monsoons the Institute will take up a major plantation drive and the Forest Department of State Government is being roped into supplement our efforts.

SPORTS COMPLEX:

During the year we have had interaction with the Ministry of Sports, Government of India and we have been asked to submit a proposal for upgrading the existing sports infrastructure. These initiatives would improve the general ambience of the Institute and also provide further facilities for extra curriculum activities.

- During the period of report the Fellowship Award Committee met twice, first onwhen it recommendedscholars for selection and the second on 14th December 2011 when 16 scholars were recommended for selection as Fellows.
- Mr. S.P. Thakur, IAS (1986 Batch: Orissa Cadre) has joined the Institute as its Secretary on 22nd September 2010.
- The vacancy of the Section Officer (Horticulture) has been filled during the period under report.
- The vacancy of the Private Secretary to the Secretary has been filled through departmental promotion.
- The fire-fighting system in the Rashtrapati Nivas building is being strengthened.
- To boost sales in the Book-cum-souvenir the system for payment through credit card would be introduced shortly.
- Special initiatives have been taken to redress Fellows' grievances. In this direction a register is being maintained at the Secretary's office in which the Fellows can record their complaints. This has been welcomed by the Fellows.
- After the theft of the bell in the night of 21st April 2010 the security system has been beefed up. The working of the security system was reviewed and the contract with the firm was cancelled after their services were found unsatisfactory. The system of monitoring the security of the campus in the form of night vigil by the officers of the Institute was also started.
- Due to the various measures taken by the Institute the rate of submission of manuscripts by Fellows has increased substantially. In the last year, all Fellows except one have submitted their manuscripts. The administration is writing to the defaulter Fellow requesting him to submit his monograph at the earliest.
- Although the telephone and electricity bills have reduced substantially in the last couple of years, efforts are being made to further reduce these bills.

No.:-GIA Cell/SAR/IIAS Shimla/2011-12/303

Dated: 21.09.2011

To,
The Director
Indian Institute of Advanced Study
Shimla.

Subject: Management Letter: Deficiencies noticed in accounting records/system/internal controls etc.

Sir,

This office has audited the annual accounts of the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Shimla for the year 2010-11 and had issued the Audit Report thereon dated 21.9.2011. During the course of audit, the following deficiencies of minor nature were noticed, which were not included in the Audit Report. These are, however, being brought to your notice for taking corrective and remedial action.

(A) Fixed Assets (Schedule-3): ₹ 1503.35 lakh

- (i) Fixed Assets Register required to be maintain in the form (GFR 19) has not been maintained.
- (ii) The above includes Fixed Assets valuing ₹ 10.07 lakh, which have already been declared unserviceable but no provision towards anticipated loss of the value of these assets has been made. This has resulted in overstatement of 'Fixed Assets' and 'Capital fund' as well as understatement of 'Deficit' for the year' by ₹ 10.07 lakh each.

(B) Current Assets, Loans and Advances (Schedules-4 & 4A) : ₹ 312.27 lakh
Loans and Advances (Schedule-4A) : ₹ 34.08 lakh

- (i) The above includes ₹ 30.81 lakh miscellaneous advances pending for adjustment, out of which ₹ 16.40 lakh are recoverable since last more than three years (1972-73 to 2007-08) and are doubtful of recovery. As such to depict a correct recoverable position of loans and advances, a provision for these doubtful miscellaneous advances of ₹ 16.40 lakh should have been made in the accounts. Non provision for same has resulted in overstatement of 'Loans and Advances' and 'Capital Fund' as well as understatement of 'Deficit for the year' by ₹ 16.40 lakh each.
- (ii) There is a difference of ₹ 0.22 lakh between the figures of misc. advances (₹ 30.81lakh) shown in the Accounts and the figures of subsidiary ledger (₹ 31.03lakh). This has resulted in understatement of 'Grant-in-aid' and 'Miscellaneous Advances' to that extent.

(C) Current liabilities and provisions (Schedule-2)	: ₹ 513.05 lakh
Provisions:	: ₹ 298.54 lakh

The above does not include liability of ₹ 14.12 lakh (DA arrears: ₹ 4.22 lakh, Tuitions Fee: ₹ 3.00 lakh and Pension: ₹ 6.90 lakh) of the Fellows and employees. This has resulted in understatement of 'Current Liabilities and provisions' and 'Deficit for the year' as well as overstatement of 'Capital Fund' by ₹ 14.12 lakh each.

(D) General

- (i) The Institute, instead of preparing the separate GPF account statements, has mixed the funds of GPF subscription and interest earned thereupon with GIA accounts. Moreover, the Institute has not followed the Government of India instructions dated 24 January 2005 regarding investment out of provident fund subscriptions.
- (ii) The assets of ₹ 13.12 lakh were disposed of during the year, without the required prior sanction of the Government of India. This fact has not been disclosed in the schedule of 'Notes on Accounts'.
- (iii) Journal for passing adjusting entries had not been maintained by the Institute.
- (iv) Sundry Debtors of ₹ 5.09 lakh outstanding for a period exceeding six months include Debts of ₹ 3.45 lakh outstanding for a period of more than three years (4 to 10 years: ₹ 2.19 lakh and 11 to 23 years: ₹ 1.26 lakh). These Sundry Debtors have neither been segregated as 'Good' and 'Bad and doubtful' nor this fact disclosed in the 'Notes on Accounts'.

Yours faithfully,

B. Income and Expenditure Account

Other Administrative expenses (Schedule-12): ₹ 573.39 lakh

C. Grants in Aid

Out of the total available funds of ₹ 11.06 crore (unspent balance of the previous year: ₹ 1.25 crore and grants during the year ₹ 9.81 crore), the IAS could utilize a sum of ₹ 11.04 crore leaving a balance of ₹ 0.02 crore as on 31st March, 2011.

AUDITORS' REPORT

We have audited the 'Balance Sheet' of Inter University Centre for Humanities and Social Sciences (UGC), Shimla as at 31st March, 2011 and also their 'Receipts & Payment Account' & "Income & Expenditure Account" for the year ended on that date, annexed hereto and report that:-

These financial statements are the responsibility of the UGC's Management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in India. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

As stated in note no.'s 3 to 5 of Schedule – 2 attached with Balance Sheet, Misc. Advances pending adjustment includes 1, 28, 475/- recoverable since last more than three years which are doubtful of recovery. In our opinion, provision for doubtful debts of Rs. 1,28,475/- should be made in the accounts. Due to such an adjustment not being made in the financial statements, it has resulted in overstatement of unspent Grant in Aid and Misc. Advances to that extent.

Subject to foregoing remark we report that:-

1. We have obtained all the information and explanation which to the best of our knowledge and belief were necessary for the purpose of audit.
2. in our opinion and to the best of our information and according to explanation given to us the said accounts read with the notes contained in Schedule 2, give a true and fair view:-
 - (a) In the case of the Balance Sheet, of the state of affairs of the Centre as at 31st March 2009.
 - (b) In the Case of Income & Expenditure Account of the amount utilised from Grant in Aid for the year ended on that date.
 - (c) In case of Receipts & Payment Account of the amount received and payment made during the year ended on the date.
